The Millionaire Runs an Engine a Distance of 100 Miles.

FR. DONOR, Ia., Oct. 27.—A millionaire engineer ran a train on the Illinois Central while the directors of the road were making their annual tour, and when they reached here John Jacob Astor, who has quite a mania for mechanics, mounted the engineer's seat and drove the engine to Sioux City, a distance of about 100 miles.

The train was made to hum at a rather fast pace for that division of the road, but with the exception of a little difficulty with the water supply, the trip was made successfully.

AN OKLAHOMA CYCLONE.

Houses and Stores Blown Down and Goods Scattered For Miles.

PERRY, Ok., Oct. 27.—Reports were received here this morning of a cyclone that struck Tonkawa, a small town north of here, night before last, in which several buildings were blown down. The Reed store building at Tonkawa was leveled, and the dry goods scattered around generally.

Dan Lawhead's store in the country several miles northwest of Tonkawa, was also blown down and his goods scattered for miles. Several dwellings were whirled to pieces by the twister, but no lives were lost, and but few slightly wounded are reported.

WHERE THERE'S A WOMAN
There's Sure to Be a Way—Miss Anthony's Enormous Mending.

When a woman makes up her mind to do anything there is no word that will describe her energy so well as the good modern expression "hustle."

The women of Kansas have started in to make woman's suffrage carry, and they do not stop at a pretence of lack of funds in their efforts to make it a success. A meeting for Miss Anthony was proposed for Kansas City the other day, and it seems Mrs. Thurston and Mrs. Johns thought it could not be done as there was no money, but the Kansas City suffragists had fun in their minds to have a meeting, and the following letter from Mrs. Jennie Mayer, the local president of the association at Kansas City, to Dr. Eva Harding, will explain the success of their efforts:

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Oct. 25, 1894.
MY DEAR DOCTOR—What's the matter with Miss Anthony? Five thousand people! How is that for a crowd that has no money and can't get up a meeting. I tell you that it was just a "stunner" and Miss A. made the best speech she ever made. She was carried away with her audience because she had so many heart fully two-thirds, I think. She was delighted with the way everything went and with the way we had advertised her. There were two bouquets sent up to her as a "peace offering" from the Democrats. It brought forth great applause.

We ladies went to all the packing

SHE HUMORS THEM.

Mrs. Lease Gives Her Audience What They Want.

IF THEY ARE ADMINISTRATIONISTS.

She Represents the Administration as Little Less Than Gods and a Little More Than Angels.

Mrs. Mary E. Lease, who is this afternoon speaking at Hamilton hall, has been and is now making a campaign of her own arranging.

To a STATE JOURNAL reporter who saw her in the parlors of the National hotel this morning she said: "I myself picked out the route over which I wished to travel in this campaign and have been making my own arrangements."

A friend of Mrs. Lease, Mr. Connors of Wichita, who was present, said: "The truth of the matter is, Mrs. Lease, you are making speeches in Kansas during this campaign just to show that Breidenbach and Lowell can't drive you out of the state. You know that is the truth, although you don't like to admit it, isn't that true?"

To this Mrs. Lease replied: "Yes; that is about the way it is, but I never had any larger meetings than I am having this year. Yesterday I had a great meeting at Wamego, and the day before I talked to the largest crowd ever assembled in Clyde and I told a people a few days ago at Smith Center."

"Do you talk about state or national issues?" asked the reporter.

"I talk on national issues most of the time, but of course I always say something about the silver question."

"What do you say about the state administration?"

"Oh, I don't always say much about the members of the administration, but when I do I paint them a little lower than gods and a little higher than angels. You see I draw my inspiration generally from my audiences and when I find they are in hearty sympathy with the administration I give them what they want."

When asked about her plans she said: "I am going into the southern part of the state next week and the night before election I will speak in Wichita. After election I will go at once to the Pacific coast where I have ten dates for lectures. My brother and my baby Ben Hur will probably accompany me on that trip."

When asked what effect David Overmyer's campaign would have, she said: "Overmyer is making a great campaign. He is making a great speech and the truth is he is the greatest element of danger confronting the Populist party today."

Further speaking of the campaign she said: "There is something peculiar about this campaign in that there is such a lack of enthusiasm among the people. While I never talked to as great a crowd as I am having now and they all give the most earnest attention, there is a silence always pervading the audience which is simply awful."

Mrs. Lease told a good story on herself which happened on a Union Pacific train yesterday.

She said: "I always eat dinner in a dining car when I have an opportunity, because I always get a good dinner on a Pullman car. As I went to the dining car yesterday I noticed just ahead of me a person who looked as though he might be a poor laboring man. One of the class who work on the railroad for $1.10 a day. I had hardly seated myself at one end of the car before I noticed that the waiters were having lots of fun with the poor fellow who did not know how to order anything. Finally the Pullman conductor came through and, leaning over, said to me: 'Mrs. Lease that fellow is a representative Populist.'"

"Oh no," I replied, that fellow is a Republican, look at his nose, and it was very red, for he had been drinking. The conductor insisted that he was a Populist, but finally said that Major Merrill was back in the rear Pullman. I said I would go back and see him when I had finished my dinner, which I did.

"As I left the dining car I heard my Irishman, for he was Irish, say to the collector: 'You wouldn't be after charging $1 for the bite that I let now, would you?'"

"I was hardly seated in the Pullman talking to the governor (Mrs. Lease calls Major Merrill governor already) when here came my Irishman. He stopped beside me and said he was so glad to see me and informed me that he was a Populist and had heard me speak many times. He asked where I was going, and said he was so sorry he could not stop over at Wamego and hear me speak again. Just then I looked up and there at the front end of the car was that Pullman conductor convulsed with laughter. He had sent the fellow back to see me, but when we got to Wamego there was a big crowd with a brass band at the depot to receive me, and then I got even with the conductor by asking him to look at that and said 'those people are Populists!'" houses and handed the bills ourselves and it was so new to the men to see ladies that they seemed pleased. Then I went up and down the avenue with bills on my arm and put them in the stores and gave them to white and black alike and it set the men to thinking that we are in earnest. It was a grand success and the meeting is the talk of the town today. I wonder what Mrs. Thurston and Mrs. Johns will say when they hear about it. "No money, no meeting."

On yes; I had a letter from Mrs. Catt yesterday. She said you had told her we wanted her and she wants to come. She has written Mrs. Thurston and told me to do the same and make the same request. We want three meetings—at the noon hour at the railroad shops and afternoon and evening meetings also.

We want Capt. Joe Waters if we can get him on November 2nd, too.

ANYTHING FOR THE COON.

A Political Story About Senator John Martin.

The editor of the Quenemo Republican says in his paper:

We remember that among the first political speeches we ever listened to was one by Senator John Martin, then a candidate for congress against Hon. Thos. Ryan. Mr. Martin told a story which struck our boys' fancy, and we have seldom noted John Martin's career lately without thinking of it. The story:

In one of the western Kansas counties a countryman brought a live coon he had captured into town, and finding a crowd of boys on the street corner, he made the proposition that the one who could give him the best reason for his political faith, should have the coon as a present.

"Boy," he called to one of them, "what's your politics?"

"I'm a Republican."

"Why?"

"Because Dad is!"

The countryman shook his head dubiously, and turning to another, propounded the same question.

"I'm a Democrat," was the answer.

"And why?"

"Cause Dad is!"

The prohibitionist was a prohibitionist simply "because," a reason he probably inherited from his mother, but it didn't capture the coon.

A street Arab, with sharp eyes, ready wit and a blacking box, was standing near. The coon was eyed keenly, and he made the proposition that the one who could give him the best reason for his political faith, should have the coon as a present.

"Mister," said the boy, who knew something was wrong in the other boys' answers, but whose knowledge of the titles of political parties was limited, "I'm just most anything for that there coon." History does not record what became of the animal.

In Kansas politics John Martin has been anything for the coon.

GAVE HER A DOLLAR.

John Coyne Moved by the Misfortunes of the Debtors Family.

The Doubt family which came here to play an engagement at the Kansas avenue house have not been in the theatrical profession long. They are wending their way through Kansas from a little town up in Nebraska, where the family were formerly in at least moderate circumstances. Reverses came and Mrs. Doubt sold her gold watch and all other articles she possessed to raise $400, which has already been sunk in the venture. She is well educated and has taught school. Today she presented herself at the office of County Superintendent Wright to see if she could get a place of teaching school in Shawnee county, this winter.

Mr. Wright explained that he had no vacancies, but sent her to City Superintendent Davidson, where she was also unsuccessful. At Superintendent Wright's office in the court house ex-superintendent Josiah Jordan, J. L. Gray and Bullfinch, who were present when Mrs. Doubt told her pathetic story. John Coyne, who possesses as honest and tender a heart as ever beat beneath an Irishman's coat, didn't hear all her story, but simply knew she was an educated woman looking for work.

"Here, madam," said Coyne, "is a five dollar note in his voice, 'take this.' And he pressed a dollar into her hand.

"But, sir, I can't take this," she said with tears in her eyes; "I never did such a thing in my life."

"That don't make any difference," insisted Coyne, "can't stand it to see a woman refused help because she's poor. Mrs. Doubt really didn't want to take the dollar, but John Coyne couldn't be induced to take it back, so she did the only thing she could do without offending him—kept it.

POLICEMAN GIVES BAIL.

An Indicted New York Police Captain Admitted to Bail at $7,500.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Police Captain Max Schmittberger of the Tenderloin precinct who was indicted by the grand jury for receiving bribes, was brought to the district attorney's office and was admitted to bail at $7,500. The warrant issued for Schmittberger and ex-Wardman Gannon was not served for some time, if at all.

Gannon has been in Ireland for three months and apparently has no notion of returning soon.

MRS. LANGTRY STARTS.

She Leaves London Today for New York With Her Company.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Mrs. Langtry and her company leave today for New York on the American line steamer Paria. During her American tour Mrs. Langtry will rely upon society plays at first and later upon Shakespearean productions. She is to open in New York, if it is possible, to get a theater there, but her program is still unsettled.

ODD FELLOWS.

Splendid Charity of the Pennsylvania Jurisdiction—Linklets.

Pennsylvania has three Odd Fellows' homes—one in Philadelphia, one at Ben Avon (Avalon), Allegheny county, and one at Meadville. The Philadelphia home shelters 35 boys and 19 girls, with 9 wards in families, a total of 63. This home is filled to the utmost capacity, every cot being occupied. At Ben Avon there are 19 boys, 7 girls and 2 widows—28. At the Meadville home there are 4 girls, 2 boys, 3 men and 1 widow—10 in all. All the institutions are supported by voluntary contributions.

Atlantic lodge of Marblehead, Mass., will observe its fiftieth anniversary Thursday, Nov. 23.

The grand lodge of Pennsylvania will hold its annual session in Philadelphia in May.

The sovereign grand lodge voted not to make May 30 the memorial day of the order.

Let those who claim to be Odd Fellows in spirit and in truth show their hands, and thus enable an inquiry to be made in regard to the amount of money they have contributed toward the support of our homes during the past year.

Members of the order in Cincinnati are working hard to lift the $60,000 debt on their magnificent temple.

Don't go to lodge and get over in one corner and talk about your own business all evening and ache for every chance to get out in the morning to smoke.

The order in Utah is enthusiastic upon the matter of an Odd Fellows' home in that jurisdiction.

A beautiful ceremony for Memorial day was adopted by the sovereign grand lodge and will soon be placed on sale for the use of the order.

The order needs more of that kind of Fellowship that won't stop going to lodge whenever it imagines its feelings are hurt.

The love that Odd Fellowship teaches is that kind which makes every sufferer your neighbor and the object of your care.—Porter.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

Settlement of the Ritual Question—Sword Thrusts.

The translation of the ritual has been settled, says The Pythian Journal. It was a hard fight and was ably conducted on both sides, with big odds against those in favor of translation. The wisdom of the law as passed remains for the future to decide whether it proves a benefit or detriment. The order will go about gaining members, influence and popularity. Some members may leave the order, some lodges may surrender and more than likely to their future regret. The majority has decided.

J. A. Hinsey was elected president of the board of control of the endowment rank in 1895.

Hon. Philip Colgrove, who has been heralded as the coming man, was elected as predicted supreme vice chancellor. It would not take much of a seer to predict his election to the head of the order in 1896 at Minneapolis.

Past Supreme Chancellor William Ward of Newark, N. J., has been a member of the order since 1869.

New Orleans lodges are discussing the question of establishing a Pythian cemetery.

The indications point that the German lodges will remain loyal.

RED MEN.

Provide Entertainment for the Winter.

In every locality, either among the members of the tribe or their friends, there is talent that may be utilized for a programme of music, song, recitation and long talk to occupy two runs very pleasantly and profitably. Draft this talent into the service of the entertainment committee for the benefit and amusement of the tribe.

The fiftieth annual council fire of the great council of the United States will be held in G. S. D. 405 (common era, 1897).

The degree of Pochontas increased 4,000 during the past great sun.

By the decisive vote of 71 years to 29 years the law was adopted by the great council by which all business of the tribe will be transacted in the chief's degree after first cold moon, 406 (Jan. 1, 1897).

Mileage was appropriated by the great council for 14,016 miles to the amount of 9,992 fathoms and 10 inches.

The great incoherence has decided that, on application by admission upon withdrawal card having been rejected, no time need elapse before making application again in the same or another tribe.

Hebrew Societies.

There are in the state of New York 13 Jewish mutual charitable and fraternal associations offering pecuniary aid and protection to the members. Their membership is about 60,000.

Pursuant to a resolution adopted at the convention of the United States grand lodge, the executive committee of the Order Brith Abraham has presented its grand master, Samuel Dorf, with a very elegant diamond staff.

IDENTIFIED HERSELF.

He Heard Her to the End and It Satisfied Him.

"I have no doubt, madam," said the cashier, "that you are Mrs. Jykes, the person named on the draft, but the rules of the bank require that you must be identified by somebody known to us before I can cash the paper for you."

"I suppose I could go and hunt up some acquaintance," replied the lady, "but I took it for granted you were sufficiently familiar with my face to make such a formality unnecessary. It has been in the public prints often enough. I am known to you by name, I presume, as a public speaker and lecturer on social and political subjects."

"I repeat, madam, that so far as I am personally concerned I have no doubt you are Mrs. Jykes, the well known public speaker, but in business matters, as you must be aware, a banking house must be guided by established business principles."

"When business principles are contrary to established rules of common sense," interrupted the cashier emphatically, "what is the use of being guided by them? Bank drafts are drawn, not to facilitate the transaction of business. The theory is that banks are organized to serve as a means of promoting the rapid interchange of commodities, or, rather, the converting of commodities into the circulating medium of the country, to the end that toll may meet its due reward without undue delay, but banks, sir, are conducted for the real purpose of enriching their proprietors. They are swift to take money in and slow to pay it out. They form but another link in the chain which binds torpority to the hands of labor, another spade of earth on the mountain that crushes down into the ground the common people! Banks, sir, are simply a part of the scheme through the operation of which the rich are growing richer and the poor are growing poorer. The monopolists control the means of exchange, dictate to the workers the terms on which the workers may live. Like a hideous vampire, the money power fattens on the lifeblood of the people and—"

"Madam," said the cashier feebly, "here's your money."—Chicago Tribune.

BIG FIRE AT PENSACOLA.

Docks and Vessels in the Harbor Burning—Loss $300,000.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Oct. 27.—The most disastrous fire which has occurred here in ten years is now under way. Muscogee wharf the property of the Louisville & Nashville steamship company, which is located all the warehouses of the coal chute of the export coal company is burning with no hope of the fire being controlled by the fire department.

Several sailing vessels moored alongside of the wharves have caught fire and are now burning. The cargo loss cannot be ascertained but it will not fall short of $300,000.

A KANSAS MAN SUES.

He Wants to Recover $7,000 from the Rockford "Christ."

ROCKFORD, Ill., Oct. 27.—Merritt Painter of Webster, Kas., son of Mrs. Painter, the disciple of Schweinfurth, who was killed at Byron a few days ago, will bring suit against the false Christ to recover notes to the amount of $7,000, which she possessed and it is alleged Schweinfurth appropriated.

J. C. WILSON INTERVIEWED.

He Talks in St. Louis About the Reorganization of the Santa Fe.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 27.—J. C. Wilson, one of the receivers of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railway who is in the city, asked as some length on the reorganization of that property. He said: "The stockholders' meeting which was to be held Saturday in Topeka, adjourned until Thursday, awaiting the decision of the United States court in the injunction matter. Both the protective committee and the present management, between which there is a sharp competition for mastery in the reorganization, are well represented in Topeka, and the result of Thursday's meeting will depend largely upon the action of the court on Monday. If the injunction is made permanent the protective committee will be enabled to elect two directors on the new board. The receivers are taking no part in the efforts to reorganize—they being expressly forbidden to do so by Judge Caldwell, who declared that was a matter in which the security holders only were concerned."

When asked who was the prospective incumbent of the assistant traffic manager's place made vacant by Mr. Riddle's recent promotion, Mr. Wilson said that no decision had been reached, and that it was altogether likely the position would be allowed to remain vacant for some time.

The Henry Howgate Case.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Capt. Henry W. Howgate was in the criminal county court of the District of Columbia today, and through Attorney A. S. Worthington withdrew his plea of not guilty to all the indictments entered against him in October, 1891, and a demurrer to each and all of them.
